

Much Adu About the Mobile Commuter Store

Once again, the Mobile Commuter Store (MCS) has partnered with D.C. United, Washington's Major League Soccer team, to promote public transportation. With first overall draft pick Freddy Adu heading up the team, D.C. United is one of the hottest tickets in town. Getting to the games at RFK stadium is simple by using the Stadium-Armory Metrorail station on the Blue and Orange lines.

As a result of this unique partnership aimed at encouraging commuters to attend more home games, D.C. United has provided the Mobile Commuter Store with English and Spanish D.C. United schedules and ten tickets per home game for the remainder of the season. The tickets will be raffled off to patrons of the MCS along with farecards that will enable them to get to the games more easily.

D.C. United Director of Corporate Marketing Jason Hynd said, "This is a great opportunity to promote Metrorail, Metrobus, walking and biking as alternatives to attend our games. RFK Stadium is convenient to Metrorail and we have many fans in Northern Virginia, so we are excited to be back on board with this opportunity."
